The present Series of JEWISH CLASSICS was projected in continuation of the previous publication of the English Translation of the HOLY SCRIPTURES—the greatest classic of Hebrew literature and of all times.

When the New Translation of the Scriptures was approaching completion, the late Jacob H. Schiff, through whose munificence the publication of that translation was rendered possible, further proposed to the Jewish Publication Society of America that they should issue a representative selection of the various classes of literature produced by Jewish writers after the close of the Biblical Canon, and for that purpose placed a fund at the disposal of the Society.

In the deed of gift of Mr. Schiff, which was intended to make the present Series possible, a Committee was named by him consisting of the following:

Dr. Solomon Schechter, Chairman
Dr. Cyrus Adler, Vice-Chairman
Rev. Dr. H. G. Enelow
Prof. Israel Friedlaender
Rev. Dr. Kaufmann Kohler
Prof. Alexander Marx
Rev. Dr. F. de Sola Mendes

Rev. Dr. David Philipson
Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman
The Hon. Mayer Sulzberger

Later the Committee was increased by the addition of Prof. Louis Ginzberg, Prof. Jacob Z. Lauterbach, and Prof. Henry Malter. Upon the death of Dr. Schechter, Dr. Cyrus Adler was elected Chairman, and Prof. Israel Davidson was named to succeed Prof. Friedlaender. The Committee has since been deprived of the aid of Judge Sulzberger, who passed away on April 20, 1923.

The plan of the Series, however, was outlined during the Chairmanship of our distinguished colleague, the eminent scholar, Dr. Solomon Schechter.

The first principle adopted was that in all cases in which a Hebrew text was extant, it was to be printed along with the English translation, and that an endeavor should be made to present a critical text based not only upon previous editions, but also upon the available manuscripts. For this purpose manuscripts have been photographed in the libraries of England, Italy, Germany, Austria, and Hungary—wherever important manuscripts bearing upon the Series were to be found—and the Committee feel that in offering this Series they are not only making accessible to English readers some of the treasures of Jewish literature, but are adding to Jewish scholarship by presenting carefully edited texts, which they hope will become the standard texts of the Jewish Classics.

In giving the original Hebrew text the Committee have been able to add a feature which was absent in the publication of the translation of the Scriptures, the English text of which was published without the original Hebrew. This was not due to any desire on the part of the Board in charge to substitute the English text for the original; but the demand for an English version on the part of English-speaking Jews was so urgent, and the facilities in the United States for printing Hebrew at the time so meager, that the Board felt any further delay of a work that had been anxiously expected for twenty years would be inadvisable. It is the hope of the Jewish Publication Society to publish, when its opportunities permit, the Hebrew text of the Bible, side by side with the translation.

The Committee were limited in the preparation of the Series by the amount of the fund, which, though most generous, could not provide for a complete presentation of the Jewish Classics, which might well cover hundreds of volumes.

They therefore decided, in the first instance, to omit, by reason of their availability in the English language, certain works which would otherwise naturally be expected to appear in such a Series. This is notably the case in regard to two great philosophical works—the Kuzari of Jehudah Halevi, which has been translated into English by Doctor Hartwig Hirschfeld, and the Guide of the Perplexed of Moses Maimonides, which has an English version at the hands of the late Doctor Michael Friedländer. Similarly two great names like those of Flavius Josephus and Philo of Alexandria, although rightfully belonging to a series of Jewish Classics, were not included because we were given to understand that they had already been selected for publication in the Loeb Classical Library.

The Committee deemed it necessary to limit the Series to about 25 volumes, and they will endeavor to include in this number representative works of the various classes of Jewish literature under the headings of Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha, Mishnah, Talmud, Midrash, Codes, Hebrew Poetry, Philosophy, Ethics, Mysticism, History, Epistles, Travels, Homiletics, and Folklore.

The Series was inaugurated with a selection from the religious poems of Solomon Ibn Gabirol, edited by Professor Israel Davidson, and put into English verse by Mr. Israel Zangwill. The present, the second volume of the Series, is based largely upon the critical text of the Diwan of Jehudah Halevi, prepared by the distinguished Rabbi Heinrich Brody of Prag, and published under the auspices of the Mekize Nirdamim Society. Doctor Brody has graciously permitted the use of these selections, and has made certain alterations in his published text, and supplied several notes for the present volume. The translation is due to Mrs. Nina Salaman, who has for a decade been the medium through which many English readers have had glimpses into medieval Jewish poetry. Her Songs of Exile, published in 1901 under the name of Nina Davis, have become known to thousands of readers. It is a source of profound gratification to the Committee to be able to offer the work of this gifted lady in the present Series.

While the body of her translation has been done in free verse, she has made several additional translations, in stricter form, and with rhyme, which are printed together toward the end of the volume.

The Committee trust that this Series will awaken the interest and command the support of those who feel the obligation to see to it that the Jewish Classics, which, with few exceptions, have been unknown to English readers, shall come into their own, and take their rightful place among the classic literatures of all peopies.

"I am a harp for thy songs"

INTRODUCTION

THE GIFT of song, cherished and tended as it was by the Spanish Jews of the Middle Ages, reached its highest development in the poems of Jehudah ben Samuel Halevi, born, as is now generally accepted, in Toledo in 1086, the story of whose life as physician, philosopher and poet has come down to us in but slight fragments, and ends vaguely among the mists of tradition. In the disturbed atmosphere of the Spain of his day, Castile lay under the comparatively mild sway of the Catholic King Alfonso VI. Persecution was as yet occasional, and only burst into flames if the favour shown to the Jews was considered by their ill-wishers to be unduly great. Judging from Jehudah Halevi's letters to his friends, his life passed in serving the people of Toledo, where many of his years were spent, as their much sought-after and hard-worked physician; and one suspects his profession to have been a rather burdensome incident in his life, while his whole heart and soul were consumed in the pursuit, as he says, of the "fount of living waters."

Yet we must be on our guard against taking too literally his depreciation of the medical art. He was equally outspoken against metaphysics in his treatise on the Philosophy of Judaism, the Kitab al-Khazari, his one great Arabic work. The truth is that, even more than Spinoza, Jehudah Halevi was "God-intoxicated" or, to use Heine's phrase, "God-kissed". God, not the physician, was to him the Healer; God, not human reason, was the source of truth. The physician was but God's servant, and by Him endowed with such gift of healing as he possessed.

From evidence to be found in the poems, we know that their author was bound to Spain by the presence and love of his one daughter and her little son, Jehudah,[1] as well as by the minor ties of memory[2] and by many friendships. But one love was to be conquered by the power of another, and we find the poet at the age of fifty years journeying forth on the perilous seas to seek the still more greatly beloved land of his fathers. Heine detected this love and this longing, but it needs not the insight of a Heine to perceive it—the most casual reader of Halevi's poems realizes that the poet's soul is bound up with his love for his people and their lost land. It was about the year 1141 that he set out on his journey to Palestine, cheerfully facing the hardships of the way and the stormy seas, and making songs about them as he went. Not the least of his inheritance from the sweet singer of Israel was his descriptive power. He pictures storm and landscape with the vivid touch of actuality. His praise of nature is no literary trick, we catch the genuine notes of a nature-lover. As evening falls and the stars come out, he writes of sea and sky:

[1] See latter half of poem No. 11 in the Selection.
[2] See No. 13 in the Selection.

> They are like two seas bound up together;
> And between them is my heart—a third sea
> Lifting up ever anew my waves of praise.[1]

So we can trace his steps from Spain to Alexandria, the Jews everywhere giving him a friendly reception, and strongly but vainly urging him to remain with them and to discontinue his perilous pilgrimage. Further we hear of his passing up the Nile and visiting the community at Cairo and Damietta, and he is known to have touched Tyre and Damascus. But after his arrival in Palestine, definite reports fade into rumours. Tradition tells us that he was ridden down and slain by an Arab when at last he reached his goal and was singing his great Song to Zion by the ruins he had longed to see. Certain it is, however, that many of its lines must have been written while his desire to reach Jerusalem was yet but a dream. His poem reaches its appointed end in his ardent confidence that the age-long hope of his suffering people will find its fulfilment.

[1] Last lines of No. 5 in Selection.

The poet Swinburne has written a few lines in a poem called "The Triumph of Time", about another singer of the Middle Ages—lines which make one think equally of the life, the love, and the death of Jehudah Halevi:

> There lived a singer in France of old
> By the tideless dolorous midland sea.
> In a land of sand and ruin and gold
> There shone one woman, and none but she.
> And finding life for her love's sake fail,
> Being fain to see her, he bade set sail,
> Touched land, and saw her as life grew cold,
> And praised God, seeing; and so died he.

The French singer loved and sought the lady of his dreams; but she whom the Rabbi loved, as Heine has said—"her name was Jerusalem".

Jehudah Halevi has attained the highest honour to which a writer can aspire—the esteem of his peers. Ḥarizi, the Hebrew poet-critic of a generation near his own, describes him as supremely inimitable, as one who "broke into the treasure-house of song", and who, going out again, "shut the gate behind him". His love-songs, his prayers, his epistles are all alike "drawn from the Holy Spirit". Some six centuries later, when Herder—a philosopher-poet like Jehudah Halevi himself—composed his epoch-making treatise on the Spirit of Hebrew Poetry, his model (so he himself recorded) in great passages of dialogue was "not Plato but Jehudah Halevi." And Heine has immortalised his own appreciation of our poet in several famous stanzas of his Romanzero.

Hence we ought not to assent without reservation to a judgment passed by Joseph Jacobs in his brilliant essay on Jehudah Halevi. He there draws an interesting and just distinction between poetic form and poetic force. Browning, he points out, had great poetic force, but little poetic form; Swinburne, a master of form, lacked force. As applied to Yannai and Kalir and others of that earlier school, this distinction is perhaps relevant. But it is not profitable to say of them, still less of Jehudah Halevi, that "they worked in a medium that did not admit of great poetic form". If defect there were, it was in the mediary not in the medium; in the hand, not in the instrument. In Kalir—to cite a few lines from the opening of his Piyut on the Dew—force is more apparent than form:

טַל תֵּן לְרָצוֹת אַרְצָךְ
שִׂיחֲנוּ בְּרָכָה בְּרִיצָךְ
רוֹב דָּגָן וְתִירוֹשׁ בְּהַפְרִיצֶךָ
קוֹמַם עִיר בָּהּ חָפְצָךְ
בְּטָל

Israel Zangwill has thus rendered these lines:

Dew, precious dew, unto Thy land forlorn!
Pour out our blessing in Thy exultation,
To strengthen us with ample wine and corn
And give Thy chosen city safe foundation
In Dew.

Here the thought is impressive, and the Hebraic conception of the Dew as the reviver of earth and soul is well developed as the piyut proceeds. But the Hebrew verses jingle harshly. Is the fault in the medium? Contrast these lines with two verses from an early song of Jehudah Halevi's in praise of Jerusalem:

יְפֵה נוֹף מְשׂוֹשׂ תֵּבֵל — קִרְיָה לְמֶלֶךְ רָב
לָךְ נִכְסְפָה נַפְשִׁי — מִפַּאֲתֵי מַעֲרָב
הֲמוֹן רַחֲמַי נִכְמָר — כִּי אֶזְכְּרָה קֶדֶם
כְּבוֹדֵךְ אֲשֶׁר גָּלָה — וְנָוֵךְ אֲשֶׁר חָרַב

Beautiful height! the whole world's gladness!
O great King's city, mountain blest!

My soul is yearning unto thee—is yearning
From limits of the West.

The torrents heave from depths of passion,
At memory of thine olden state:
The glory of thee, borne away to exile,
Thy dwelling desolate.

Thus is force wedded to a beauty of form which must give pause to all depreciation of the medium. For in these Hebrew lines of our poet, it is not merely the elegiac sentiment that moves us; we are charmed equally by their lyric grace.

Moreover, that Jehudah Halevi was a stylist as well as a man of ideas, is shown by the fact that, while his Hebrew is easily understood, he is not easy to translate. This difficulty sometimes arises from the exigencies of rhyme. We are not attempting in this Introduction to analyze Jehudah Halevi's poetical schemes, or to discuss their relation to real or assumed Arabic parallels. It must suffice to state that some of these poetical schemes are very intricate, and recondite terms are occasionally chosen, not because those terms are the most suitable, but because the rhyme, the acrostic, or the metre demands them. The translator must sometimes ignore these enforced expressions, just as assonances and alliterations must sometimes be abandoned as irreproducible. But the difficulty of exact translation mostly arises from a deeper cause, accruing not from the poet's failures but from his successes, from his inspired choice of words, from his mastery of style. Perhaps we ought not to describe Jehudah Halevi's Hebrew as easy. His simplicity is delusive. But is not this true of all great lyrists? Masters of song use the one right word, for which there is no equivalent in their own or in any other language. This mastery is not consistent, and the greatest poets have their intermittences. Jehudah Halevi is no exception. But Heine describes him, and in the main with verity, as one of the aristocracy of letters, possessing that grace, in virtue of which "they who have it cannot sin, not in verse nor yet in prose". This quality is seen also in Ibn Gabirol, but in Jehudah Halevi more organically. Both, for instance, repeatedly employ biblical phraseology. But with Ibn Gabirol the employment is that of an artist, with Jehudah Halevi of a musician. One sees Ibn Gabirol using a text for a final touch of shape and colour; one hears Jehudah Halevi working his texts into the very substance of his harmony. From the Royal Crown one might, without much mutilation of the structure, omit from each stanza the closing citation, artistic coping stones though they are. One could not discard Jehudah Halevi's biblical allusions from a Zion Ode without leaving the music incomplete or even discordant.

The poet's gift of grace, his inability to sin, whether in verse or in prose, is shown again in the work already mentioned, the Kitab al-Khazari. Dr. Hirschfeld, its translator from the Arabic, well says, this is a "book for the people". It "contains sufficient attractive and instructive material even for readers who would skip the more abstruse passages". The treatise, a series of five dialogues, is romantically framed in the medieval story of the King of the Khazars, the royal convert to Judaism who came under the wings of the Shekhinah after doubt and controversy. There is much in these dialogues on technical topics; astronomy and philology, among other serious subjects, play their part. But, regarded as a whole, the Khazari is as much a poem as are its author's poems themselves. At all events, Jehudah Halevi takes the poet's view of Judaism and of the Jews. Israel is the heart of mankind, filling the same function in the world at large as does the heart in the body of man. This is Halevi's epigram and text. Taking into account particularly the first of the dialogues we might almost argue that the poet possessed dramatic gifts, though he appears never to have attempted to write a formal drama.

Our reference to the Khazari reminds us of yet another of Jehudah Halevi's contradictions, a contradiction which, however, we must not take too seriously. Let us listen to part of a conversation between the Khazar King and his Rabbi interlocutor, as rendered into English by Dr. H. Hirschfeld. Discussing with the Rabbi the qualities of the Hebrew language, the King of the Khazars remarks:

"Thou wilt only succeed in placing it thus on an equality with other languages. But where is its pre-eminence? Other languages surpass it in songs metrically constructed and set to music."

The Rabbi: "It is obvious that a tune is independent of the metre, or of the lesser or greater numbers of syllables. . . . Rhymed poems, however, which are recited, and possess good metre, are neglected for something higher and more useful. . . ."

Al Khazari: "It is but proper that mere beauty of sound should yield to lucidity of speech. Harmony pleases the ear, but exactness makes the meaning clear. I see, however, that you Jews long for a prosody, in imitation of other peoples, in order to force the Hebrew language into their metres."

The Rabbi: "That is because we were and remain froward. Instead of being satisfied with our true superiority, we corrupted the structure of the language, which is built on harmony, and created discord. . . . . In matters of poetry we suffered what befell our forefathers, concerning whom it is written, They mingled among the Gentiles and learned their works". (Psalm cvi, 35).

Thus Jehudah Halevi considered rhyme and metre as foreign to the Hebrew language, and unnecessary to Hebrew poetry, which can exist in perfection quite independently of such ties. It may well be that modern Hebrew poetry will eventually find the inspiration of its Renaissance in the rejection of these bonds, and in the resumption of those earlier forms which offered fuller freedom to the Hebraic genius. And yet, with the inconsistency which may be allowed to great poets, Halevi uses both rhyme and metre with perfect and invariable success. His range was remarkable, though Heine somewhat exaggerates when he writes of him:

Der in heiligen Sirventen,
Madrigalen und Terzinen,
Kanzonetten und Ghaselen
Ausgegossen alle Flammen.

Perhaps, too, Heine's description of Jehudah Halevi as a Minnesinger is badly conceived. An essential feature of the Minnesinger was his wandering life, passing continually like Sir Walter Scott's Minstrel from court to court, from castle to castle. Worthy of close study as are Jehudah Halevi's love songs, wedding odes, elegies, epigrams, epistles, satires and riddles, yet it is not in these that he reached the summit of his genius. His noblest work is to be found in his religious and national meditations and songs. It is not always easy to distinguish between his so-called sacred and secular poems. Harkavy's division into secular and sacred is thus scarcely justified. A better distinction is Brody's, into liturgical and non-liturgical. For while some of Halevi's poems were intended for use in prayer and others were not so intended, the great mass of his work is impregnated with religious feeling. This is seen even in his love poems. These, often outspoken enough, are never coarse: a spiritual restraint is discernible amid the amatory abandonment. Often such a poem, in its opening words, indicates a human relationship; we read on and find that the lovers are God and Israel. It is as though to a lover that the poet sings:

Would I might see his face within my heart!
Mine eyes would never ask to look beyond.

The mystery and wonder of God and the Universe create a theme for many poems of great beauty, such as the one beginning:

O Lord, where shall I find Thee?
All hidden and exalted is Thy place;
And where shall I not find Thee?
Full of Thy glory is the infinite space.

And further:

Longing, I sought Thy presence;
Lord, with my whole heart did I call and pray,
And going out toward Thee,
I found Thee coming to me on the way,
Yea, in Thy wonders' might as clear to see
As when, within the shrine, I looked for Thee.

It is unnecessary to stress the point that Halevi's songs to Zion are his most beautiful works, displaying the deepest of his emotions. The greatest of these songs (No. 2 of this volume) is chanted to-day in Jewish congregations all over the world, on the Ninth of Ab, the fatal date on which, first by Babylon and again 656 years later by Rome, Jerusalem was laid waste. The ruling forces of the poet's life, the love and hope expressed in this Ode, have won him the sympathy and recognition of his posterity through the ages.

This great poet of the Jewish hope said of himself when singing to Zion of her further restoration, "I am a harp for thy songs." Here indeed we hear the real man. His love poems, as Ḥarizi said, are made of dew and fire. But in his poems to Zion there is no such combination of a poet's ordinary artifices. It is his soul that is the instrument—and on his heartstrings is played the song of Israel's hope.

Many other compositions were modelled on Jehudah Halevi's Ode to Zion, as the liturgy for the Fast of Ab proves. These have their beauty, but the poets who followed Halevi appear to us like the stars after the moon has risen. In Spain the poets still sang because, for many years after Jehudah Halevi's death, his voice re-echoed in theirs. A poet and the begetter of poets—we need seek no more splendid epitaph for this "poet by the grace of God."

In the selection contained in the present volume it has been sought to present specimens of the poet's various styles and subjects. No selection can do Halevi justice. There are few poets who have maintained so consistently high a level; scarcely a line of his but deserves to be read.

The Hebrew text is, to a very large extent, that edited by Dr. Brody, and it is with great pleasure that I here record my sincere thanks for the privilege of using the results of his critical labours. The translation is in prose, with a tendency towards rhythm, and following the original, line by line; in some cases, however, there are added alternative translations in verse. As to the method of translating, only one remark need be offered. It has always seemed to the present translator at once unfair to a poet and displeasing to his readers to divest verses of their own peculiar dress. Thus in the Ode to Zion there seemed no reason for omitting Jehudah Halevi's reminiscence of Oholah and Oholibah, in order to soften down a somewhat harsh allusion. Nor, when rendering a love poem, does it seem just to turn Jehudah Halevi's own words:

> Would that, after my death, unto mine ears should come
> The sound of the golden bells upon thy skirts.

into:

> I think that I shall hear, when I am dead
> The rustle of thy gown, thy footsteps overhead.

To do these things may be attractive, but the oriental flavour is lost, and the poet is made to speak with the voice of a modern western writer, while clearly he was neither western nor modern.

I have to thank Dr. Israel Abrahams for constant encouragement, advice and unfailing support during the progress of this work. To Mr. Israel Zangwill likewise I owe a debt of gratitude for having read the proofs of the translation and for several useful suggestions; and also to Mr. Herbert Loewe for having given me much assistance in the proof-reading. And if I may permit myself to sound a further personal note for a moment, I should like to say this: I have loved Jehudah Halevi ever since, at my father's side, I began to read and understand his verses. If, by this volume, defective though it be in plan and imperfect in execution, I can win for Jehudah Halevi a new band of admirers, my own love for the poet will have borne its most precious fruit.

I. THE JOURNEY TO ZION

I

MY HEART IS IN THE EAST

My heart is in the east, and I in the uttermost west—
How can I find savour in food? How shall it be sweet to me?
How shall I render my vows and my bonds, while yet
Zion lieth beneath the fetter of Edom, and I in Arab chains?
A light thing would it seem to me to leave all the good things of Spain—
Seeing how precious in mine eyes it is to behold the dust of the desolate sanctuary.

ODE TO ZION

(For rhymed version see page 151)

Zion! wilt thou not ask if peace be with thy captives
That seek thy peace—that are the remnant of thy flocks?

From west and east, from north and south—the greeting
Kings 5,4. "Peace" from far and near, take thou from every side;

And greeting from the captive of desire,[1] giving his tears like dew
Of Hermon, and longing to let them fall upon thine hills.

To wail for thine affliction I am like the jackals; but when I dream
Of the return of thy captivity, I am a harp for thy songs.

My heart to Bethel and Peniel yearneth sore, en. 32, 2,3. To Maḥanaim and to all the places where thy pure ones have met.

There the Presence abideth in thee; yea, there thy Maker
Opened thy gates to face the gates of heaven.[2]

He will renew His wondrous deeds when thou renewest
Before Him the dancing song of Maḥli and Mushi's sons;[1]
And He will restore the souls to the bodies,
And the dry bones shall come to life.

Ps.107,29–30. Then in a moment the waves are stilled,
I Sam. 30,16. Like flocks spread abroad upon the field;
And the night, when the sun hath come down
the steps
Of the starry host, captained now by the moon,
Ps. 45,14 Is like an Ethiopian woman in raiment of gold
Ex. 39,13. And of blue inset with crystals.
And the stars are confused in the heart of the sea
Like strangers driven out of their homes;
And after their image, in their likeness,
they make light
In the sea's heart, like flames of fire.
The face of the waters and the face of the heavens, the infinity of sea,
The infinity of night, are grown pure, are made clear,
And the sea appeareth as a firmament—[2]
Then are they two seas bound up together;
And between them is my heart, a third sea,
Ps. 89,10. Lifting up ever anew my waves of praise.

[1] Names of tribes of Levitic singers in the Temple.

[2] בעינו might mean either "in its essence"—in other words that the sky and the sea look exactly alike, or—that the firmament is reflected in the sea. In any case this line is leading up to the idea of the next three lines.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE HOUSE OF OUR GOD

The singer's reply to one who reproved him for his longing to go to the Land of Israel

Cant. 5.5. Thy words are compounded of sweet-smelling myrrh
And gathered from the rock of the mountains of spice,
And unto thee and the house of thy fathers belong precious virtues
Whereunto praises fail to attain.
Thou comest to meet me with sweet speeches,
But within them lie men in wait bearing swords—
Words wherein stinging bees lurk,[1]
Is. 33,12. A honeycomb prickly with thorns.
If the peace of Jerusalem is not to be sought
II Sam. 5,6.8. While yet with the blind and the halt she is filled, Ps. 122,8–9. For the sake of the House of our God let us seek
Her peace, or for the sake of friends and of brothers;
Gen. 44,10. And if it be according to your words, see, there
Jos. 2,21. is sin
Upon all those who bend towards her and bow down,
And sin upon those sires who dwelt in her as strangers,
And purchased there vaults for their dead.

And vain would be the deed of the fathers who were embalmed
And their bodies sent to her earth—
And they sighing for her sake
Though the land was full of reprobates;
And for naught would the fathers' altars have been built,
And in vain their oblation offered there.

Is it well that the dead should be remembered,
And the Ark and the Tablets forgotten?
That we should seek out the place of the pit
and the worm,
And forsake the fount of life eternal?
Have we any heritage save the sanctuaries of God?—
Then how should we forget His holy Mount?
Have we either in the east or in the west
A place of hope wherein we may trust,
Except the land that is full of gates,
Toward which the gates of Heaven are open—
Like Mount Sinai and Carmel and Bethel,
And the houses of the prophets, the envoys,
And the thrones of the priests of the Lord's throne,
And the thrones of the kings, the anointed?
Unto us, yea, and unto our children, hath
He assigned her;

Isa. 13,21. And though wild beasts abide in her, and doleful creatures,
Was it not so she was given of old to the fathers—
All of her the heritage of thorns and thistles?
Gen. 13,17. But they walked through the length and the breadth of her

And there they walked before the Lord
And learnt the straight paths.
And they said that here arise the shades
And those who lie under the bars of earth come forth,
And that here the bodies rejoice,
And the souls return to their rest.

See now, yea see, my friend, and understand
Prov. 22,5. And turn aside from the lure of thorns and snares,
And let not the wisdom of the Greeks beguile thee,
Which hath no fruit, but only flowers—
Or her fruit is, that the earth was never outstretched
Isa. 40,22. Nor the tents of the sky spread out,
Nor was any beginning to all the work of creation
Nor will any end be to the renewal of the months.[1]

WHEN MY SOUL LONGED

The Beginning of His Journey

Ps. 84,3.

That day when my soul longed for the place of assembly,
Yet a dread of departure seized hold of me,
He, great in counsel, prepared for me ways
for setting forth,
And I found His name in my heart a sustainment.
Therefore I bow down to Him at every stage;
And at every step I thank Him.

I

My God, break not the breakers of the sea,
Isa. 44,27. Nor say Thou to the deep, 'Be dry',
Until I thank Thy mercies, and I thank
The waves of the sea and the wind of the west;
Let them waft me to the place of the yoke of Thy love,
And bear far from me the Arab yoke.
And how shall my desires not find fulfilment, Seeing I trust in Thee, and Thou art pledged to me?[1]

Hath the flood come again and made the world a waste
So that one cannot see the face of the dry land,
And no man is there and no beast and no bird?
Isa. 50,11. Have they all come to an end and lain down in sorrow?[1]
To see even mountain or marsh would be a rest for me,
And the desert itself would be sweet.
But I look on every side and there is nothing
But only water and sky and ark,
Job 41,23–24. And Leviathan making the abyss to boil,
So that one deemeth the deep to be hoary.
And the heart of the sea concealeth the ship
As though she were a stolen thing in the sea's hand.
And the sea rageth and my soul exulteth—
For to the sanctuary of her God she draweth near.

TO THE WEST WIND

This is thy wind, O perfumed west,
With spikenard and apple in his wings!

Thou comest forth of the treasuries of the traders in spice—
Ps. 135.7. Thou art not of the treasuries of the wind.
Thou waftest me on swallow's wings, and proclaimest liberty for me;
Cant. 1.13. Like pure myrrh from the bundle of spices thou art chosen.[1]
How must men long for thee, which for thy sake
Ride over the crest of the sea on the back of a plank!
Stay not thine hand from the ship
Either when day abideth or in the cool breath of the night;
But beat out the deep, and tear the heart of the seas and touch
The holy mountains, and there shalt thou rest.
Rebuke thou the east wind which tosseth the sea into tempest
Jer. 1.13. Until he maketh its heart like a seething pot.

V

My desire for the living God hath constrained me
To seek the place of the throne of mine anointed—
Gen. 31.28. Even so that it hath not suffered me to kiss
The children of my house, my friends, and my brethren;
And that I weep not for the orchard which I planted
And watered, and my green shoots that prospered;
And that I remember not Jehudah and Azariel,
My two beautiful choice flowers;
And Isaac, whom I counted as my child,
Deut. 33.14. Fruit of the sun, best of the growth of my moons;
And that I have all but forgotten the house of prayer
In whose place of learning was my rest,
And that I forget the delights of my Sabbaths,
The beauty of my Festivals, the glory of my Passovers,
Isa. 42.8. And have given my glory unto others,
And forsaken my praise unto graven images.

I have exchanged mine abode for a shadow of shrubs,
And for a hedge in the thicket my strong bars;
And my soul is sated with the chief spices,
And the scent of the thorn-bush is mine now
for perfume;
And I have ceased to walk with my face bending to the ground,[1]
But have set my paths in the heart of the seas—
To the end that I may find the footstool of my God,
And there pour out my soul with my thoughts,
And stand at the threshold of His holy mount and set open Towards the doors of Heaven's gates, my doors,
And suffer my spikenard to flower by the waters of Jordan,
And put forth my shoots by Siloah.—

The Lord is with me. How shall I fear or dread,
Since the angel of His mercy beareth my weapons?
I shall praise His name while yet I live,
And thank Him unto all eternity.

Call greeting unto daughters and kindred,
Peace to brothers and to sisters,

Thrust by the hand of the west into the hand of the east:
This one passeth to lead on, and that one to thrust back.
I Sam. 20.3. Between him and death is but a step,
Aye, between them but the thickness of a plank;
Buried alive in a coffin of wood,
Upon no floor, with no four cubits of earth,[1] nor even with less.
He sitteth—he cannot stand upon his feet,
He lieth down—he cannot stretch them forth;
Sick and afraid because of the heathen
And because of the marauders and the winds.
Job 36.12. The pilot and the mariner, and all their rabble—
They are the rulers and captains there.

Look on the cities and consider the villages
Which Israel held in possession;
And give glory unto Egypt, and lighten

Ex. 13,21-22. And the pillar of fire and the pillars of cloud,
And the eyes of all watching them and beholding!
From thence were hewn the masters of God's covenant,
Jud. 20,2. And thence were carven the corner stones of the people of the Lord.

Praise, above all cities, be unto Egypt
Whither came first the word of God.
Ps. 80,9. There a chosen vine was planted,
Whose clusters became a peculiar treasure;
There the envoys of God were born,
Envoys of God, as from bridegroom to bride;
And there God's glory came down and walked
Job 38,9. In a pillar of fire and cloud, swathed in thick darkness;
And there the offering of the Lord was made,
And the blood of the covenant given, and redemption found.
There stood Moses to supplicate—
And verily no assembly is like unto this for prayer.—
And Israel is to be, unto Egypt and Assyria,
Isa. 19,23-24. A third, and a highway between them.
Isa. 19,19. Yea, an altar of the Lord hath been in the midst of Egypt,
Neh. 9,5. To exalt His name above all praise,

Then why do the satirists mock at me
And make me a word of reviling?
Since if they believe in God's law
The teaching of Israel refutes them, [1]
And if they lack faith—lo! we part
With no portion in common between us.

Possibly it referred to the conception of the Divine Presence never returning to Egypt. It has been suggested that the Egyptian Jews of that time removed the line from the poem. [Ehrlich reads וְיָרַד in line 31, and supplies in line 32 the words: כְּמוֹעֵל בָּהּ מְעִילָה. The meaning of the two lines would then be: He who goes down from her holiness to Babylon or Egypt is as one committing against her a trespass. Ed.].

[1] The law against dwelling in Egypt is to be found in Deut.17,16. This text often caused qualms to the Jewish communities which settled in Egypt in the Middle Ages.

Turn aside with me to Zoan, to the Red Sea, to Mount Horeb.
I will go round unto Shiloh to the heap of the ruined shrine,
And will get me along in the paths of the Ark of the Covenant,
Until I taste the dust of its hiding place

And I see the habitation of that beauteous one who hath forgotten her nest,
Since the doves be driven away, and ravens[1] abide there.

Because of this my soul is sorely sick and grieved,
For through my sin the morn is turned to evening time.
Verily, my heart fainteth and longeth for the mount of myrrh,
Even as the soul desireth to find its inmost

To seek their favour
And forsake God's will,
To betray the Creator
And serve His creatures?—
The face of the morning
Would be black to his eyes,[1]
The cup of sweetness
Bitter to his mouth,
Wearied and toiling,
Oppressed and weak,
And longing for Carmel
And the City of the Forests,[2]
To seek forgiveness
At the peaceful graves
Of the ark and the tablets
That are buried there.—[3]
I shall hope to pass thither,
I shall fall on their grave,
And mine eyes, at their ruin,
Shall break forth into torrents,
And all my thoughts
Trembling unto Sinai,
Mine heart and mine eyes
Unto Mount Abarim!
And how should I not weep
Ezek. 47,2. And pour forth tears,
And hope therefrom
The quickening of the dead?
Since there are the Cherubim
With the written tablets—

A SLAVE TO LOVE

By the life of our troth, my love, by thy life and the life
Of love which hath shot an arrow at me, Ex. 21,6. Verily have I become a slave to Love, that hath pierced
Mine ear, that hath cloven my heart in twain.

PARTED LOVERS

Isa. 57,9. Wherefore, O fair one, dost withhold thy messengers
Isa. 13,8. From the lover whose frame is filled with the pains of thee?

Knowest thou not that thy lover awaiteth nothing from fate
But to hear the voice of thy greeting?

If parting be decreed for the two of us,
Ps. 17,15. Stand yet a little, while I gaze upon thy face.

I know not if my heart be held back within my frame
Gen. 13,3. Or if it goeth forth upon thy wanderings.

By the life of love, remember the days of thy longing, as I—
I remember the nights of thy delight.

As thine image passeth into my dream,
So let me pass, I entreat thee, into thy dreams.

Isa. 51,15. Jer. 31,34. Between me and thee roar the waves of a sea of tears
And I cannot pass over unto thee.

But O if thy steps should draw nigh to cross—

Sweet apples of her breasts
Cant. 7,14. Give forth their fragrance;
For thee she hideth in her necklaces
Precious fruits shining like light:
Wait a little for her precious fruits
Until the moon be full.

For full-moon it will be tomorrow—
Like one of the moons of her adornment,
And to thee she will be a lamp,
Lighting up her bowers.

Beautiful is thy fair gazelle—
Isa. 30,26. Her light is sevenfold;
She would shame, but for her veil,
All the stars of heaven.
Pomegranates upon a watered branch—
Guard them from other eyes!

Though she bring her serpents forth
From behind her veil,
Thou shalt have no fear of them:
Her adders have no venom.

Cant. 6,10. Pure and fair as the moon—
All praise faileth to tell of her.

The dawn of her countenance darkeneth
Job 38,32. The Great Bear and his train;
And a lamp of grace she lighteth
Ex. 25.37. Before her face.

Eccl. 11,9. Rejoice, O young man in thy youth,
And gather the fruit of thy joy,
Thou and the wife of thy youth
Ruth 4,11. Who cometh to thine house.

Precious blessings of the only God
Deut.33,16. Shall come upon thine head together, Job 21,9. And thine house shall be at peace from dread,
And all who rise against thee shall be cut off.
And when thou liest down thou shalt not be afraid;
Prov. 3,24. Thou shalt lay thee down and thy sleep be sweet.

Ps. 45,5. In thine honour, my bridegroom, ride on and prosper,
Raise up and put forth thy beauty;
And the heart of thine enemies God shall pierce,
And the sins of thy youth He will forgive,
And will bless thee in all the doings
Deut. 28,20. Of thine hand and in all thine increase.
Deut. 16,15.

Eccl. 12,1. And remember thy Rock and thy Creator
When the good cometh which He shall bring thee;

AMID THE TREES OF EDEN

Thou who, amid the trees of Eden, art a flowering myrtle tree,
And amid the stars of heaven, art the bright Orion,
God hath sent to thee a cluster of pure myrrh
Of His own work, not the perfumer's skill.

The dove from whom, that day she nested
in the myrtle tree,
The myrtle stole her fragrance and gave forth perfume—
Ask not, while with her, for the sun to rise;
She asketh not, with thee, for the rising of the moon.

THE GARDEN OF HIS DELIGHT

Cant. 4.16. Let my belovèd come into his garden
Cant. 1,12. And prepare his table and his seat,
To feed in the gardens.

The glorious flowers of the garden of his delight—
On these shall he set his eyes,

When I knock at the habitation of his temple;
To feed in the gardens

(The Hebrew text is translated from an Arabic song)

(For rhymed version see page 161)

I am of little worth and poor when parted
From my glory, and my limbs become like a shadow,
Until I am grown old, but not by reason of my years.
For lo, my witnesses—the years of my pilgrimage!
But I have grown old in his faithlessness; for if indeed
He would return to me, my youth too would return.

III. POEMS OF FRIENDSHIP

TO RABBI ISAAC THE ORPHAN

Earth, like a little child, was sucking
But yesterday the rains of winter, with a cloud for nurse;
Or she was a bride prisoned by the winter,
Whose soul was yearning for the times of love.
She longed for the wooing-time until the summer came,
And then the longing heart was healed.
(ant. 5,13. With raiment of golden terraces and broidered work of linen, she is like a maiden
Delighting, revelling in her fair attire;
Each day she maketh changes in her broideries
And apportioneth apparel unto all about her.
From day to day she changeth the colours of her plants
From hue of pearl to sard and emerald.[1]
White is she now and green, and now she is red;
She is like a fair one kissing her belovèd.
So beautiful are her flowers that meseemeth
She hath robbed the very stars on high.

Cant. 4,13. The garden of her plants have we sought early Ps. 78,21. With the daughter of the vine, that burneth with flames of love—
Cold as the cold snow in the hand of him that holdeth her,
But within him she is like a kindling fire:
Out of an earthen vessel she riseth like the sun;[1]
We bring a cup of onyx and she is poured forth.
With her we walk under the shadows, about
The garden that laugheth through the weeping of the showers;
That rejoiceth while the tears of the clouds
are on her face,
Like a sprinkling of crystals scattered from a necklace;
That is glad for the swallow's voice, as for sweet wine,[2]
Nahum 2,8. And the voice of the dove cooing and taking Ezek. 7,16. sweet counsel,
Singing through her leaves as a maiden singeth
Nahum 2,5. Through her veil, leaping and flitting to and fro.

My soul seeketh eagerly for the morning wind,
For therein it embraceth the perfume of the belovèd—
The wind that playeth with the myrtle to make it waft
Its perfume to them that love, but are very far away.

And the myrtle boughs rise proudly aloft and bend low,
And the palm branches clap their hands at the singing of the birds,
Waving and bowing before the face
Of Isaac, and the whole world laughing with his name;
Gen. 21,6. For she said, "Hath not God made me to laugh
Since I take fast hold of the cords of Isaac?"
I speak, and none denieth my words, in praise
Of his honour; and every ear that hearkeneth consenteth.
The fame of all princes is divided between good and evil,
Yet surely is his name only good without dissent.
How sweet to mine ear to hear of him
While my soul is busied in remembering him;
Aye, beholding his likeness, it addeth the more—
Prov. 25,1. Even twofold praise, re-echoing the song.
Of thee, O lordly Isaac, my tongue shall sing
Isa. 32,4. Glowing words, flowing songs without pause;
For I make a covenant with thee, for the days of my life,
That my tongue shall not be silent from thy praise.
Which shall I set first of thy praises,
Since thy soul is joined to every honour?
With thee do noble thoughts pitch their tents;

TO RABBI SAMUEL HA-NAGID

Nahum 3,17. The chosen of crowns
For the chosen of crowned,
And the song of songs
For the prince of princes!

Set thou a watchman;
Isa. 21,6. What he seeth let him tell:
He will see the chariot
Of Samuel the Prince;
Ex. 15,20. And timbrels and dances
Ranged round about him;
For every neck a chain
Ezek. 16,11. And on every hand a bracelet;
He goeth out in his thousands,
Num. 9,16. And so may he ever be—

To rescue the martyrs,
To loose the bound.

Thou art fairer
Ps. 45,3. Than the sons of men—
So art thou worthy
To be their prince.
Thy shadow is a canopy
Isa. 4,5. Over all their glory,
Jer. 29,7. Their peace is in thy peace,
And of thine honour is their honour;
In thy shadow they live
Among a nation that enslaveth them,

TO RABBI MOSES IBN EZRA— ON PARTING

We know thee, O separation, from the days of youth,
Jud. 5,21. And the river of weeping—that ancient river!
Shall we strive with fate, that hath not sinned,
And with days, though days bear no iniquity?
They run in circles, in a right course,
And naught is perverse nor crooked in the Heights.—
Can this be a new thing, since naught in the world is new,
And since her laws are inscribed by the finger of God?
And how shall her words change, since they all
Ps. 77,11. Are sealed by the ring on the right hand of the Most High?
And every cause is re-found in the circuit,
And every new thing hath been already many times;
And man is united but to be parted again,
Gen. 25,23. To bring forth out of one nation many nations.
Gen. 11,1–9. For had not the sons of man been divided from of old,
Then would the earth not be filled with peoples.

A thing may be which is both good and evil,
Prov. 3.8; 14.30. That hath in it both marrow and rottenness for the bones:
Isa. 8.21. If a man wax wrathful he curseth his day,
And denounceth his angered moments;
Yet that is the day that others bless,
Job 21.13. The very day they spend in pleasantness.
Moreover, all food in the mouth of the healthy man is like honey,
But honey in the mouth of the sick is like juniper.[1]
And as for him that sorroweth, the lights are dark to his eyes:
He seeth them not—they are hidden from him—
Ex. 40.35. Like mine eyes, on this day when the cloud resteth upon them,
When they pour forth floods at the parting from Moses—
The fount of wisdom, in whose mouth I find
The place of gold, the mine of purest ore.

Friendship bound up my soul with his soul
While the chariots of flight were not yet harnessed,
While as yet my soul had not adventured upon parting,
And the sons of the days were all with us complete.
The daughters of the days did bear us singly,
But the daughter of love bore us as twins,
Cant. 5.13. In faithfulness, upon a bed of spices,

Isa. 9,4. And the tears defiled with blood.

I remember thee, and am remembered, in the days
That we passed, and they were like dreams.

Gen. 37, 7. Bow down in wisdom to my sheaf.
And when a fool seeketh the secret, I answer him:
Prov. 11,22. What hath a ring of gold to do upon a swine's snout?
And how, upon a sterile place, should I seek
For my clouds to drop their rains?
And my need from fortune is light and passing,
Like the need of the soul for the body,
Which, in so far as it holdeth her she giveth
it life,
But when it wearieth she abandoneth it like an effigy.

BEFORE THEE IS MY WHOLE DESIRE

O Lord, before Thee is my whole desire—
Yea, though I cannot bring it to my lips.

Thy favour I would ask a moment and then die—
Ah, would that mine entreaty might be granted!

That I might render up the remnant of my spirit to Thine hand,
Then should I sleep, and sweet my sleep would be.

When far from Thee, I die while yet in life;
But if I cling to Thee I live, though I should die.

Only I know not how to come before Thee,
Nor what should be my service nor my law.

Show me, O Lord, Thy ways!
And turn me back from bondage of my folly;

And teach me, while there yet is power in me
To bear affliction; scorn not mine abasement

Ere yet the day I grow a burden on myself,
The day my limbs weigh heavy each on each;

אֲדֹנָי נֶגְדְּךָ כָּל־תַּאֲוָתִי

וְיוֹם יִכְבַּד קְצָתִי עַל־קְצָתִי

When I am bowed despite me, and the moth
Eateth my bones aweary of sustaining me;

And I fare forth whither my fathers fared,
And where they rested find my camping place.

Stranger and sojourner am I on face of earth,
While in her womb is mine appointed home.

My youth, until to-day, hath done its pleasure:
But when shall I do good for mine own soul?

Eccl. 3.11. The world which Thou hast set within my heart
Hath held me back from seeking out mine end;

And how then shall I serve my Maker, while
A captive to my lust, a slave to my desire?

And how shall I aspire to lofty place?—
Tomorrow morn the worm will be my sister;

And how upon a day of gladness shall my heart be glad?—
I know not if it shall be well with my tomorrow;

For lo, the days and nights are pledged together
All to consume my flesh till I am gone,

To scatter to the wind the half of me,
And half of me restore unto the dust.

וַאֲבָנַע בְּעַל־כָּרְחִי וְיֹאכַל

וְאָסַע אֶל־מְקוֹם נָסְעוּ אֲבוֹתָי

וְלָרוּחַ יְזָרוּן מַחֲצִיתִי
וְלָעָפָר יְשִׁיבוּן מַחֲצִיתִי

What can I say? Temptation doth pursue me
As doth an enemy, from youth to age;

And what hath fate for me if not Thy favour?
If Thou art not my lot, what is my lot?

I am despoiled and naked of good works,
Thy righteousness alone my covering—

But why make longer speech, why question more?
O Lord, before Thee is my whole desire.

A SERVANT OF GOD

Ah, would that I might be a servant of God, my Maker!
Though every friend were far from me, yet He would draw me near.

My Maker, my Shepherd,
Thou possessest my soul and my body;
Thou discernest mine aim,
Thou seest my thoughts,
My path and my couch;
Ps. 139,2,3. And Thou siftest all my ways.

If Thou help me, who shall make me stumble?
If Thou restrain me, who else can set me free?

Mine inmost parts do yearn
To be in communion with Thee,
While yet my cares
Set them afar from Thee,
And my paths incline
From the path of Thy steps.

Lord, teach me! let me tread along Thy truth,
And gently lead me on in judgment and condemn me not.

If I am even in youth
Too weak to do Thy will,
How then in old age
Can I yet hope and watch?
O God, heal, I beseech Thee!
With Thee, O God, is the healing.

The day old age shall root me up, and my strength forget me,
Do Thou not leave me, my God; do not forsake me.

Crushed and weak,
I sit and tremble every moment;
Naked and despoiled,
Jer. 51,18. I go on my vain wanderings;
And I am polluted
Through my manifold sins and transgressions.

Between Thee and me—iniquity which divideth us,
Holding me back from seeing Thy light with mine eyes.

Incline Thou mine heart
To do the service of Thy kingdom,
And my thought
Make pure for knowledge of Thy Godship;
And in my time of pain
O stay Thou not Thine healing.

ASLEEP IN THE BOSOM OF YOUTH

Asleep in the bosom of youth, how long wilt thou rest?
Know that boyhood is shaken off like tow.
Are the days of dawn for ever? Rise, go forth—
Prov. 13.24. See, the angels of old age do chasten thee betimes.
Then shake thyself from temporal things, as birds
Cant. 5.2. That shake themselves from the drops of the night.
Dart like a swallow to find release from thy trespass,
Prov. 27.1. And from the happenings of the day which rage like the ocean.
Pursue after thy King in the intimate company
Jer. 31.11. Of souls that flow unto the goodness of the Lord.

Job 12,22. Who is like Thee, revealing the deeps,
Ex. 15,11. Fearful in praises, doing wonders?

The Creator who discovereth all from nothing,
Is revealed to the heart, but not to the eye;
Therefore ask not how nor where—
Jer. 23,24. For He filleth heaven and earth.

Remove lust from the midst of thee;
Job 31,33. Thou wilt find thy God within thy bosom,
Walking gently in thine heart—
I Sam. 2,6. He that bringeth low and that lifteth up.

And see the way of the soul's secret;
Search it out and refresh thee.
He will make thee wise, and thou wilt find freedom,
For thou art a captive and the world is a prison.

(For rhymed version see page 162)

Cant. 1,13. My love, hast Thou forgotten Thy resting between my breasts?
And wherefore hast Thou sold me for ever to them that enslave me?

Have I not followed Thee of old through a land not sown?
Lo, Seir and Mount Paran and Sinai and Sin are my witnesses.

And my love was Thine, and Thy favour upon me,
And how now hast Thou apportioned my glory away from me?

Thrust unto Seir, cast out unto Kedar, Tested in the furnace of Greece, afflicted under the yoke of Media—

Is there, beside Thee, a redeemer or, beside
'me, a captive of hope?—
O give Thy strength to me, for I give Thee my love.

Job 41,11. They that know my sorrow add a spark to the fire of my heart
Cant. 5,9. When they ask me: How is thy belovèd more precious than another love?

Praises and dark sayings fail to tell of Him;
Dan. 9,23. He is all desirable; His majesty cannot be sought out;
Ezek. 26,16. Therefore do I clothe myself with terrors at His flight.

Ah, pity me, and speak unto the heart so moved,
Or comfort me; for how endure love and separation?

Ex. 23,21. And His name is within me—like fire in my reins,
Jer. 20,9. Bound within my heart, shut up in my bones:
And they rebuke me—they that despise my statutes—

And they reproach me when I seek to serve Him,
And they revile me when I give glory to His Name.

They think to set me far, O God, from Thy service:

A LAMENT

Lam. 2,15. How is she that was wholly beautiful disguised to the eyes of all flesh—
Jer. 15,9. Her sun gone down while yet it is day, the desire of her eyes removed!
Her Lord hath rebuked her and set her in bonds,
Hos. 3,4. Without king and without prince.

Hotly have foes pursued her, have wakened against her with hatred, Jer. 38,22. Have sunk her feet in the mire: she hath
Isa. 50,11. lain down in sorrow.
Ezek. 26,17. And the lauded city is left waste like the wilderness,
Hos. 3,4. Without sacrifice and without pillar.

Isa. 25,5. Branches of the terrible ones are gathered to
Ps. 40,15. sweep her away;
Ezek. 8,17. Her seasons change, her sorrows are changeless.
Lions have torn her, her griefs are laid bare,
Hos. 3,4. Without Ephod and Teraphim.

Thou, only One, give rest to her, that a remnant may be left in her,
II Kings 19,3. For children are come to the birth, but there
Isa. 37,3. is no strength to bring forth.
Be a shield about them in thy mercy, Almighty Ruler!

With all my heart, in truth, and with all my might,
Have I loved Thee. In open and in secret
Thy name is with me: how shall I go alone?
(Yea, He is my belovèd: how shall I sit solitary?
And He is my lamp: how shall my light be quenched?
And how shall I halt, since He is a staff in my hand?)
Men have held me in contempt, knowing not That my shame for Thy name's glory is my glory.—
O Fount of my life! I will bless Thee while
I live,
And sing Thee my song while being is mine.

THOU WHO KNOWEST OUR SORROWS

Ps. 147,3. Thou who knowest our sorrows, and bindest up our wounds,
Turn again our tens of thousands to the land of our abodes.
There shall we offer our oblations, our vows,
our freewill offerings,
There shall we make before Thee the offerings
due to Thee.

The faithful recall to-day the wonders of olden time;
The children groan, for other lords beside Thee are their masters.
Where is God's covenant to the fathers, where
His former mercies,
When He spake from the heaven of His dwelling, unto us, face to face,
When He gave into the hand of the faithful envoy the two tablets of stone?
And where are all His marvels which our fathers have told us?

How long have we drunken our fill of bitterness, and hoped for Thy salvation?
How many seasons were we sick with longing,
but entreated none but Thee,
And watched for the light of morning, but were covered with thick darkness?

They ask the way to Zion—they pray toward her—
The children exiled from her border, but which have not stript themselves of their adornment.
The beautiful adornment for which they were praised, for this they are slain and defiled—
The treasures they inherited at Horeb, whereby they are justified and proud;
Slaves bear rule over them, but they will never cease to call Thee
Until Thou turn our captivity and comfort our waste places.

We stand upon our watch to keep Thy righteous judgments—
And even if our splendour be ruined, and we be thrust forth from Thy bosom,
And an handmaid be our mistress, and those far off from Thee rule over us, Yet do we hold fast to our crown, the diadem of Thy statutes,
Until Thou gather our company into the house of Thy choice and Thy desire,
Our holy place, our glory, where our fathers praised Thee.

The precious one abiding in her body,
As light abideth in deep darkness—
Longeth she not to separate from the body,
And return to the majesty of her trappings?
For she shall eat, on the day of her separation,
The fruit of her law[1]—and this is the fruit thereof:
Honey of Eden, a honeycomb of sweetness,
Ps. 103,5. To satisfy her mouth with good things.
The ways of her Maker she shall see,
And shall forget the days of her affliction;
She shall praise His Name with all
The souls that be praising God.

THE PHYSICIAN'S PRAYER

My God, heal me and I shall be healed;
Let not Thine anger be kindled against me
so that I be consumed.
My medicines are of Thee, whether good
Or evil, whether strong or weak.
It is Thou who shalt choose, not I;[1]
Of Thy knowledge is the evil and the fair.
Not upon my power of healing I rely;
Only for Thine healing do I watch.

Ye curtains of Solomon, how, amid the tents of Kedar,
Are ye changed? Ye have no form, no beauty!

"The multitudes which dwelt aforetime in our midst,
Have left us a desolation, a broken ruin, unprotected—
The holy vessels have gone into exile and become profane,
And how can ye ask for beauty of a lily among thorns?"

Rejected of their neighbours, but sought of their Lord,
Isa. 40,26. He will call them each by name; not one shall be missing.
Their beauty, as in the beginning, He shall restore in the end,
And shall illume as the sevenfold light their lamp which is darkened.

WONDERFUL IS THY LOVE

(For rhymed version see page 165)

May my sweet song be pleasing in Thy sight, and the goodness of my praise,
O Belovèd, who art flown afar from me, at the evil of my deeds!
But I have held fast unto the corner of the garment of love of Him who is tremendous and wonderful.
Eccles. 2,10. Enough for me is the glory of Thy name;
that is my portion alone from all my labour.
II Sam. 1,26. Increase the sorrow, I shall love but more, for wonderful is Thy love to me.

THE DOVE AFAR

The dove, afar,[1] she flieth about the forests;
She stumbleth, she cannot shake herself free.
Flying, flitting, fluttering,
Round about her belovèd she swirleth, she stormeth.
She deemed a thousand years would be the limit of her set time,
But she is ashamed of all whereon she counted.[2]
Her Belovèd who hath afflicted her with long years of separation
Isa. 53,12. Hath poured out her soul to the grave.
"Lo," she saith, "I will not make mention any more of His name;"
Jer. 20,9. But it is within her heart like a burning fire.
Why wilt Thou be as an enemy to her, since she Openeth wide her mouth for the rain of thy salvation?
And she maketh her soul believe and despaireth not,
Job 14,21. Whether she win honour in His name or whether she be brought low.
Our God shall come and shall not keep silence;
Ps. 50,3. All round about Him is fire; it stormeth exceedingly.

MORNING HYMN

All the stars of morning sing to Thee,
For the radiance of their shining is of Thee;
And the sons of God, standing by the watches
Of night and day, glorify the glorious Name;
And the company of saints receive the word
from them,
And, every dawn, wake early to seek Thine house.

the year 4828. If the word נדוד which occurs so obscurely in the following line is a mnemonic, as S. D. Luzzatto suggests, the inference is that the exile had endured 64 years over the thousand and that the poem was written in 4892=1132 C. E.

CREATURE, IMPULSE AND CREATOR

Why believe in fate wherein there is no truth?
(Ah me! my labour is great, and my day is short).
Every man exhorteth his brother that he sin not,
Saying, "Take heed to thyself, lest the Yezer[1] tempt thee."
But if he himself should sin, he thinketh:
"What is there in the power of a man to do?—
The creature and the Yezer are in the hand of the Creator."

Esther 2,7. her to Himself for a daughter,
She is a joy for ever that groweth not old.[1]
Before kings she speaketh—she is not ashamed;
Hos. 13,8. She campeth also in the innermost heart of the wise.
Praising herself, she saith: "Verily my Creator

THE BRIDE THAT LONGETH FOR THEE

She goeth out to meet Thee—the bride that longeth for Thee.
Since the day she could no more supplicate in Thy sanctuary, she hath pined for Thee.
She is abashed each time she would be going up to the holy mount,
For she seeth that strangers go up, but not she.
And she standeth afar off, worshipping toward Thy Temple from every place whither she is exiled.
The words of her entreaty she sendeth, an offering to Thee,
While she hangeth her heart and her eyes upon Thy throne.
Look Thou and listen and hear her cry:
She is calling in the bitterness of her heart and

The sun and moon, these minister for ever;
The laws of day and night come never to an end.
Given as signs are they to Jacob's seed,
That they shall ever be a nation, that they shall not be cut off.
If with the left hand He should thrust them off, with the right hand doth He draw them nigh.
Let them not say, " 'Tis desperate ", at the time of their ruin;
Let them only believe they are eternal, and that
They shall not cease until day and night shall cease.

O GOD, THY NAME

O God, Thy name! I will exalt Thee, and Thy righteousness I will not conceal.
I have given ear, and I have trusted; I will not question, I will not prove:
For how should a vessel of clay say unto its moulder, What doest Thou?
I have sought Him, I have met Him—a tower of strength, a rock of trust—
The radiant one, like shining light, unveiled, uncovered!

Praised be He and glorified, exalted and extolled!

The beauty of Thy glory and the strength of Thy hand the heavens declare,
When they dawn and when they wane and when they bow their faces;
And angels walk amid the stones of fire and water.
Isa. 57.19. They testify to Thee, they thank Thee, Who createst the fruit of the lips,
For Thou upholdest, and failest not—without arms, without hands—

the Throne.

Praised be He and glorified, exalted and extolled!

And since a terrible day of God cometh when there shall be judgment for all work.

Job 38,6. The clouds, and the corner-stones laid.

they knew
Ecc. 2,13. The excellency of light over darkness.

So will He yet light up my gloom,
And uphold him who raiseth my fallen estate,
And make the light of mine assembly shine forth.
Then the chosen one yet shall boast herself:
"Behold the light of the Rock of my praise
Micah 7,8. Is mine, though I sit in darkness"[1]

NOW COMETH THE LIGHT

Ps. 76,5. Together in Thy light, O God resplendent, Ps. 36,10. Do we see light!

Isa. 9, 1. The people that walked in darkness—
Their hope[1] how long deferred!—
Gen. 49,17,19. While biting sin still troopeth at their heel,
Isa. 18,4. Upon them, like clear heat in sunshine,
Job 38,19. Shall dwell the light.

With veil on the uncovered head,
With glory in place of rent apparel,
Ps. 97,11. Wilt Thou clothe them; the light, once sown, make manifest
Again, as Thou hast said: "Let there be light,
Gen. 1,3. And there was light."

Thy banner, over them whose knees stumble,
Upraise, and clear the way before them
Malachi 3,1. By an Angel; and Thou wilt bless
The seed of the upright, what time Thou makest light[2]
Job 24,13. Of them that rebel against the light.

[1] I have followed S. D. Luzzatto and Brody in their pointing of שִׂבְרוֹ "his hope", although שִׁבְרוֹ is also possible in the sense of long drawn out calamity.

[2] This is an attempt to reproduce the play on words continually taking place in the Hebrew rhymes.

GOD IN ALL

(For rhymed version see page 168)

Lord, where shall I find Thee?
High and hidden is Thy place;
And where shall I not find Thee?
The world is full of Thy glory.

Found in the innermost being,
He set up the ends of the earth:
The refuge for the near,
The trust for those far off.
Thou dwellest amid the Cherubim,
Thou abidest in the clouds;
Thou art praised by Thine hosts
Yet art raised above their praise.
The whirling worlds cannot contain Thee;
How then the chambers of a temple?

And though Thou be uplifted over them
Upon a throne high and exalted,
Yet art Thou near to them,
Of their very spirit and their flesh.
Their own mouth testifieth for them
That Thou alone art their Creator.
Who shall not fear Thee,
Since the yoke of Thy kingdom is their yoke?
Or who shall not call to Thee,
Since Thou givest them their food?

I have sought Thy nearness,
With all my heart have I called Thee,

ELIJAH AND ELISHAH

Our portents linger—
Where is the God of Elijah?[1]

The son who hearkeneth unto His words,
Crying of violence out of his sorrows,
Saith, Where is the Rock and His Names?[2]
A thousand years He hath not answered him.[3]

The Tishbite decreed for Ephraim,
And closed up the heavens;
At his word came fire and water down;
I Kings 18. On Mount Carmel—there he proved Him.

I Kings 17,10-16. He spake of the jar and the cruse,
And therein set a blessing flowering;
I Kings 17,17-24. He restored the dead from the pit—
Who hath heard such things and who hath seen them?

II Kings 1,9-14. He caused the burning of the captains and their fifties;
He fasted forty days with their nights;

[1] See Mal. 3,23.

[2] Another rendering may possibly be שנותיו for שמותיו. See Ps. 61,7.

[3] Jehudah Halevi lived about 1000 years after the destruction.

MY HEART SEETH THEE

My thoughts awaken me with Thy name,
And set Thy mercies before me.

They teach me of the soul Thou hast formed,
Bound up within me;—it is wonderful in mine eyes!

And my heart seeth Thee and hath faith in Thee
As though it had stood by at Sinai.

I have sought Thee in my visions, and there passed
Thy glory by me, descending in my clouds.

My musings have roused me from my couch
To bless Thy glorious Name, O Lord.

A NEW SONG

(For rhymed version see page 170)

The day the depths were turned into dry land,
A new song sang the redeemed.
That day Thou wast honoured of the foe, and wast precious unto me,
And didst lay for Thyself a foundation of strength from the mouths of sucklings.[1]
Thou didst sink in deceit the feet of the daughter of the Anamim[2], Cant. 7,1-2. But the steps of the Shulamite were beautiful in sandals.
And all that see me shall sing, when they look upon mine honour:[3]
Deut. 32,31. "There is none like the God of Jeshurun"—even though our foes be the judges.
So wilt Thou raise my banners over those that are left,
And gather them that are scattered as though gathering ears of corn.

[1] This stanza is omitted in Heidenheim's Maḥzor, the opening ' being taken as the first letter of the acrostic. Brody opens the acrostic wlth the second '.

[2] Mentioned among the sons of Mizraim. See Gen.10,13.

[3] Thus Brody's reading; וכל רואי ישירון בעת הודי ישורון Heidenheim reads: וכל רואי ישורון בבית הודי ישוררון, which seems less probable. (See rhymed version).

To love of thee I drink my cup—
Peace to thee, peace, O Seventh Day!

Six days of work are like thy slaves,
Job 7,4. While toiling through them, full of restlessness,
Gen. 29,20. All of them seem to me but as a few days,
For the love I have to thee, O day of my delight!

I go forth on the first day to do my work,
To set in order the next Sabbath day's array:
For God hath placed the blessing there:
Thou alone art my portion for all my toil.

The lamp for my holy day is from the light of mine Holy One;
The sun and stars are jealous of my sun.
What care I for the second day or the third?
Let the fourth day hide his lights—

Fair and good it is to hold a camping place within Thine house,
For the people in whose midst Thy name doth rest;

That Name whose dwelling is the infinite space—though He
Isa. 57,15; 53.7. Is found within the contrite heart and with the humble man.

And heaven's heights cannot contain Him, even though
He came down upon Sinai and abode in a bush.

For all that He doeth is for the sake of all

NATURE AND LAW[1]

(For rhymed version see page 172)

The words of God are pure; they are more precious than rubies;
They are wrapped up in hearts, they are bound up in souls.

Weary are all words with fervent pursuit after
His praises,
For what hath one of numbered days to do with His infinite eternities?
As clouds above the dust, so high above him are God's ways.

How can understanding that is deficient and reason that is cut short Grasp the ways of might, the high, the impregnable?

Be silent before Him, each that speaketh of Him,
and perish his thought!
Only about His works let him frame song, let him ply his tongue;
Yea, concerning the law of His mouth let him lift his voice and make loud his throat.[2]

[1] Referred to by Zunz as a Piyut for the 1st day of Pentecost. It occurs in the Avignon ritual and others.

[2] The liturgies read these two lines thus:
אך במפעליו יחבר קול וירחיב את גרונו
ובדברי שיר יגבר פיו ויאריך את לשונו.

All the lands, behold, are alien;[3] so that one cannot bring an offering that is pure;
O build the chiefest city;[4] be Thou pleased as with oblation from her courts.

Isa. 19,6. Emptied is wisdom and dried up from the hearts of Kalkol and Darda:[5]
All that they have known[6] and thought is not as He thinketh and knoweth.
His works are too strong, too many, for the searching out of wisdom and reason.

His untold marvels, day by day, multiplying and bearing fruit—

Ps. 71,15. These give unceasingly songs to Him, knowing not their numbers.[7]

SLEEPER WITH HEART AWAKE

(For rhymed version see page 174)

O Sleeper, with heart awake, burning and tempest-tossed,
Go forth now and shake thyself, and walk in the light of My face.

Num. 24,17. Arise, ride on and prosper: there shall come forth a star for thee,
And he who lay down in the dungeon shall go up to the summit of Sinai.

Let not their soul exult which say: Condemned
Is Zion; for lo! My heart is there, and Mine eyes are there.

I reveal Me and I hide Me; I am angry, I am appeased;
Who shall have pity upon my children excepting I myself?

ODE TO ZION

Zion, wilt thou not ask if peace's wing
  Shadows the captives that ensue thy peace,
Left lonely from thine ancient shepherding?

Lo! west and east and north and south—world-wide—
  All those from far and near, without surcease,
Salute thee: Peace and Peace from every side;

And Peace from him that from the captive's fount
  Of tears, is giving his like Hermon's dew,
And longing but to shed them on thy mount.

I with the jackal's wail have mourned thee long,
  But dreaming of thine own restored anew
I am a harp to sound for thee thy song.

My heart to Bethel sorely yearneth yet,
  Peniel and Maḥanaim; yea, where'er
In holy concourse all thy pure ones met.

There the Shekhinah dwelt; to thee was given
Thy Maker's Presence when He opened there
The gates of thee toward the gates of Heaven.

And only glory from the Lord was thine
For light; and moon and stars and sunshine waned,
Nor gave more light unto thy light divine.

O I would choose but for my soul to pour Itself where then the Spirit of God remained Outpoured upon thy chosen ones of yore.

Thou art the royal house; thou art the throne
Of God; and how come slaves to sit at last
Upon the thrones which were thy lords' alone?

Would I were wandering in those places dear
Where God revealed Himself in ages past,
Showing His light to messenger and seer!

And who will make me wings that I may fly,
That I may take my broken heart away
And lay its ruins where thy ruins lie?

Prostrate upon thine earth, I fain would thrust
Myself, delighting in thy stones, and lay
Exceeding tender hold upon thy dust.

Yea, more, at Hebron, by the tombs in her
Of mine own fathers, I would stand and gaze
In wonder at thy chosen sepulchre;

And pass into thy forest and incline
To Carmel, and would stand in Gilead's ways
And marvel at that distant mountain thine—[1]

Thy Mount Abarim and thy Mountain Hor,
There where the two great luminaries sleep
Which were thy teachers and thy lights before.

The life of souls thine air is; yea, and thou
Hast purest myrrh for grains of dust; and deep
With honey from the comb thy rivers flow.

Sweet to my soul 'twould be to wander bare
And go unshod in places waxen waste—
Desolate since thine oracles were there;

Where thine Ark rested, hidden in thine heart,
And where, within, thy Cherubim were placed
Which in thine inmost chambers dwelt apart.

I will cut off and cast away my crown
Of locks, and curse the season which profaned
In unclean land the crowns which were thine own.

[1] See note in prose version.

How shall it any more be sweet to me
To eat or drink, while dogs all unrestrained
Thy tender whelps devouring I must see?

Or how shall light of day at all be sweet
Unto mine eyes, while still I see them killed—
Thine eagles—caught in ravens' mouths for meat?

O cup of sorrow! gently! let thy stress
Desist a little! for my reins are filled
Already, and my soul with bitterness.

I, calling back Oholah's memory,
Drink thine hot poison; and remembering
Oholibah, I drain the dregs of thee.

Zion! O perfect in thy beauty! found
With love bound up, with grace encompassing,
With thy soul thy companions' souls are bound:

They that rejoice at thy tranquillity,
And mourn the wasteness of thine overthrow
And weep at thy destruction bitterly;

They from the captive's pit, each one that waits

Panting towards thee; all they bending low,
Each one from his own place, towards thy gates;

The flocks of all thy multitudes of old
That, sent from mount to hill in scattered flight,
Have yet forgotten nevermore thy fold;

That take fast, clinging hold upon thy skirt,
Striving to grasp the palm-boughs on thine height,
To come to thee at last with strength begirt.

Shinar and Pathros—nay, can these compare
With thee in state? And can thy purity,
And can thy light be like the vain things there?

And thine anointed—who among their throng Compareth? Likened unto whom shall be Levites and seers and singers of thy song?

Lo! it shall pass, shall change, the heritage,
Of vain-crowned kingdoms; not all time
subdues
Thy strength; thy crown endures from age to age.

Thy God desired thee for a dwelling-place;
  And happy is the man whom He shall choose,
And draw him nigh to rest within thy space.

Happy is he that waiteth:—he shall go
  To thee, and thine arising radiance see
When over him shall break thy morning glow;

And see rest for thy chosen; and sublime
  Rejoicing find amid the joy of thee
Returned unto thine olden youthful time.

8

ON THE WAY TO JERUSALEM

Beautiful height! O joy! the whole world's gladness!
O great King's city, mountain blest!
My soul is yearning unto thee—is yearning
From limits of the west.

The torrents heave from depths of mine heart's passion,
At memory of thine olden state,
The glory of thee borne away to exile,
Thy dwelling desolate.

And who shall grant me, on the wings of eagles,
To rise and seek thee through the years,
Until I mingle with thy dust belovèd,
The waters of my tears?

I seek thee, though thy King be no more in thee,
Though where the balm hath been of old—
Thy Gilead's balm—be poisonous adders lurking,
Winged scorpions manifold

Shall I not to thy very stones be tender?
Shall I not kiss them verily?
Shall not thine earth upon my lips taste sweeter
Than honey unto me?

33

TO THE BRIDEGROOM

Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth,
And gather the fruit thy joy shall bear,
Thou and the wife of thy youth,
Turning now to thy dwelling to enter there.

Glorious blessings of God, who is One,
Shall come united upon thine head;
Thine house shall be at peace from dread,
Thy foes' uprising be undone.
Thou shalt lay thee down in a safe retreat;
Thou shalt rest, and thy sleep be sweet.

In thine honour, my bridegroom, prosper and live;
Let thy beauty arise and shine forth fierce;
And the heart of thine enemies God shall pierce,
And the sins of thy youth will He forgive,
And bless thee in increase and all thou shalt do,
When thou settest thine hand thereto.

And remember thy Rock, Creator of thee,
When the goodness cometh which He shall bring;
For sons out of many days shall spring,
And e'en as thy days thy strength shall be.
Blessèd be thou when thou enterest,
And thy going out shall be blest.

'Mid the perfect and wise shall thy portion lie,
So thou be discreet where thou turnest thee;
And thine house shall be builded immovably,
And "Peace" thou shalt call, and God shall reply;
And peace shall be thine abode; and sealed
Thy bond with the stones of the field.

Thy glory shall rise, nor make delay;
And thee shall He call and choose; and thy light
In the gloom, in the darkness of the night,
Then shall break forth like the dawn of day;
And out from the shining light of the morn
Shall the dew of thy youth be born.

38

FORSAKEN

(The Hebrew text is translated from an Arabic song)

I am of little worth, and poor, apart
From him, my glory; and amid the years
My form grows like a shadow; till my heart
Is old, but not by my years' number; lo,
My witnesses:—the number of the years
Of this my sojourning. Nay, but I grow
So old in his forsaking.—If in truth
He shall come back to me amid the years,
Then shall come back to me with him my youth.

47

HAST THOU FORGOTTEN?

My Love! hast Thou forgotten
  Thy rest
  Upon my breast?
And wherefore hast Thou sold me
To be enslaved for aye?
Have I not followed Thee upon the way
Of olden time within a land not sown?
Lo! Seir and Mount Paran—nor these alone—
  Sinai and Sin—yea these
  Be all my witnesses.

For Thee my love was ever,
  And mine
  Thy grace divine;
And how hast Thou apportioned
My glory away from me?
Thrust unto Seir, pursued, sent forth to flee
Until Kedar, nor suffered to abide;
Within the Grecian fiery furnace tried;
  Afflicted, weighed with care,
  With Media's yoke to bear—

And is there any to redeem but Thee?
Or other captive with such hope above?
O give Thy strength to me,
For I give Thee my love!

60

VISION OF GOD

To meet the fountain of true life I run;
Of this so vain and empty life I tire.
To see my King's face is my sole desire;
Beside Him have I fear or dread of none.

O that a dream might hold Him in its bond!
I would not wake; nay, sleep should ne'er depart.
Would I might see His face within my heart!
Mine eyes would never ask to look beyond.

WONDERFUL IS THY LOVE

Let my sweet song be pleasing unto Thee—
  The incense of my praise—
O my Belovèd that art flown from me,
  Far from mine errant ways!
(But I have held the garment of His love, Seeing the wonder and the might thereof).
The glory of Thy name is my full store—
My portion for the toil wherein I strove:
Increase the sorrow:—I shall love but more!
  Wonderful is Thy love!

66

THE LORD IS MY PORTION

Servants of time, lo! these be slaves of slaves;
But the Lord's servant hath his freedom whole.
Therefore, when every man his portion craves,
"The Lord God is my portion," saith my soul.

69

UNTIL DAY AND NIGHT SHALL CEASE

Lo! sun and moon, these minister for aye;
The laws of day and night cease nevermore:
Given for signs to Jacob's seed that they Shall ever be a nation—till these be o'er.
If with His left hand He should thrust away,
Lo! with His right hand He shall draw them nigh.
Let them not cry despairing, nay, nor say:
Hope faileth and our strength is near to die.
Let them believe that they shall be alway,
Nor cease until there be no night nor day.

GOD IN ALL

O Lord, where shall I find Thee?
All-hidden and exalted is Thy place;
And where shall I not find Thee?
Full of Thy glory is the infinite space.

Found near-abiding ever,
He made the earth's ends, set their utmost bar;
Unto the nigh a refuge,
Yea, and a trust to those who wait afar.
Thou sittest throned between the Cherubim,
Thou dwellest high above the cloud-rack dim.
Praised by Thine hosts and yet beyond their praises
Forever far exalt;
The endless whirl of worlds may not contain Thee,
How, then, one temple's vault?

And Thou, withal uplifted
O'er man, upon a mighty throne apart,
Art yet forever near him,
Breath of his spirit, life-blood of his heart!
His own mouth speaketh testimony true
That Thou his Maker art alone; and who Shall fear Thee not, for lo! upon their shoulders
Thy yoke divinely dread!
Who shall forbear to cry to Thee, That givest
To all their daily bread?

Longing I sought Thy presence;
Lord, with my whole heart did I call and pray,
And going out toward Thee,
I found Thee coming to me on the way;
Yea, in Thy wonders' might as clear to see
As when within the shrine I looked for Thee.
Who saith he hath not seen Thee? Lo! the heavens
And all their host, aflame
With glory, show Thy fear with speech unuttered,
With silent voice proclaim.
And can the Lord God truly—

God, the Most High—dwell here within man's breast?
What shall he answer, pondering—
Man, whose foundations in the dust do rest?
For Thou art holy, dwelling 'mid the praise
Of them that waft Thee worship all their days.
Angels adoring, singing of Thy wonder,
Stand upon Heaven's height;
And Thou, enthroned o'erhead, all things upholdest
With everlasting might.

A NEW SONG

The day the saved of God
Traversed the deep dryshod,
  Then a new song
  Sang Thy redeemèd throng.

Lo, sunken in deceit
The Egyptian daughter's feet,
The while, the Shulamite
Went shod in fair delight.[1]
  Then a new song
  Sang Thy redeemèd throng.

All that on Jeshurun gaze
Shall see him shrined in praise,[2]
For Jeshurun's God arose
Acclaimèd by his foes.
  Then a new song
  Sang Thy redeemèd throng.

Thy banners Thou wilt set
O'er those remaining yet,
And gather those forlorn
As gathering ears of corn.
  Then a new song
  Sang Thy redeemèd throng.

[1] See note 1 in prose version.
[2] See note 3 in prose version.

These that have come to Thee
Under Thy seal to be,
They from the birth are Thine,
Bound by a holy sign.
Then a new song
Sang Thy redeemèd throng.

Their token show to all
Whose eyes upon them fall:
Lo, on their garment's hem
The fringe ordained for them!
Then a new song
Sang Thy redeemèd throng.

For whom then are they sealed?
Let truth now be revealed:
Whose is the seal, and who Shall claim the thread of blue?
Then a new song
Sang Thy redeemèd throng.

Ah, take her as of yore,
And cast her forth no more;
Let sunlight crown her day
And shadows flee away.
Then a new song
Sang Thy redeemèd throng.

For Thy belovèd throng
Still come to Thee with song,
Singing with one accord:
Now who is like Thee 'mid the gods, O Lord!
Still Thy redeemèd throng
Sing a new song.

79

NATURE AND LAW

The words of God are pure
And precious more than gems in fair display;
They are bound up in hearts for ever, yea,
In souls are held secure.

All speech grows weary in pursuit that flies
After His endless praise—
For what hath one of numbered days
To do with infinite eternities?—
As clouds above the dust, above him soar God's ways.

What of the mind cut short?
And reason that is lacking strength to know?
How should it grasp the way of power—so Impregnable a fort?

Silence before Him, all that speak of Him!
And perish all their thought!
Only the works His hand hath wrought
Let them declare, and may their lips o'erbrim
With singing and their voice be loud with praises fraught.

Tongues be fulfilled of speech,
Exalting, crowning, telling o'er His praise;
Souls be extolling, still discerning ways
To learn and tell and teach.

But how shall I all humbly seek the Lord?
Oblation once I gave
Within His house—and "From the grave"
He said, "I yet will lift them at My word,
And I will be a father to the sons I save."

But strange are all the lands;
One cannot bring a gift without alloy.
Rebuild the chiefest city! Find Thy joy
As once from holier hands.

Wisdom is withered that abode in state
In hearts exceeding wise,
For all they thought and did devise
Is other than He knoweth; yea, too great,
Too many are His works for sight of wisdom's eyes.

His wonders manifold
Bring daily marvels new in fruitful throngs.
These give to Him, unceasing, only songs,
In numbers all untold.

Behold, clear witnesses enough are Thine!
All mountains under Heaven
They fill; on every form is graven
The seal of God; and all about them shine
The kindred lights in heaven and earth of stars twice seven.

For seven in the height
There shine the seven lamps in earthly guise,
Given to so illume the earth-dimmed eyes
To look upon His light.

SLEEPER, WITH HEART AWAKE

O Sleeper with heart that waketh,
  Burning and tempest-torn,
Go, shake thee, walk with My radiance
  Upon thee borne.

Rise up, ride on and prosper:
  A star shall guide thy quest,
Till he that lay down in the dungeon
  Reach Sinai's crest.

Let not their soul be joyful
  Which talk of Zion's despair,
For there My heart is ever,
  And Mine eyes are there.

I reveal Myself and I hide Me,
  I am wroth, I restrain the rod;
For who should pity My children
  But I, their God?

NOTES ON TEXT

להתעופף חמשים

Ll. 9–10 וְתַאֲוָתָהּ] The ו signifies "since (thou still)", as in Gen. 26,27: ואתם שנאתם; similarly for הלא Halper reads ולא; I have called attention in the notes ad loc. to the fact that this is an unnecessary correction introduced by Luzzatto, in conflict with the testimony of the manuscript.

L. 27. וְיָמוּטוּ] Ḳal, comp. Deut. 32, 35 and Isa. 54,10; the irregular vowel is due to the intended homophony with the verbs in l. 28, but this stylistic effect would be lost if we read וְיִמּוֹטוּ with Halper.

L. 50. וּבְרוֹלֵי אֲדָנִים] So MS. Oxford 1970; Luzzatto, following MS. Oxford 1971, has וברולי אבנים, for which Halper suggests וברזל ואבנים.

L. 62. הָעֲצָמִים] So in the manuscripts which I have used, with the masc. suffix on account of the following adjective; the reading העצמות, which Halper prefers, should be ascribed to the haste of a copyist, who undoubtedly was familiar with Ez. 37, 4.

L. 68. וְכַחֲכָלֶת] So the manuscripts. The sense is: He who observes the night sees a Mooress (the blackness of the night) in a dress interwoven with gold threads, and purple blue plains (sky and sea), set with jewels (the stars in heaven and their reflection in the mirror of the sea); comp. the following verses and שהחכלת דומה לים וים דומה לרקיע in Soṭa 17a, Ḥul. 89a, Men. 43b. I consider Edelmann's reading וּבְחַכֶלֶת, preferred by Halper, as a scribal error or a misprint.

Ll. 73–74. וַעֲדֵי יָם עֲדֵי לַיִל] Halper corrects and reads עֲדֵיִם for עדי ים, following MS. Amram against all other texts, עָלֵי לַיִל for עֲדֵי לַיִל. The obvious correction עדיים is found also in S. Joseph, Gibeat Saul, p. 108, who, however, retains עדי ליל, though apparently vocalizing it עֲדֵי לַיִל. I cannot imagine that the poet wishes to designate sky and sea as ornaments of the night, nor do I find an analogy to this daring picture in any other poet. As long therefore as there is not a better reading or a MS. confirmation of this emendation, I shall cling to the traditional text, of which it can by no means be said that it "makes no sense". The poet says, while applying עדי to space and time: "as far as the sea stretches, as long as the night lasts—smooth watery mirror and clear celestial canopy". This thought is by no means unworthy of expression.

יפה נוף משוש תבל

It is difficult to establish definitely the metre of this poem. I have previously construed it as Basiṭ (Diwan and שער השיר, p. 96) and hence vocalized לָךְ in l. 2; later I abandoned this view (without giving up my theory with reference to anacrusis; comp. note to No. 68, l. 10, further below) and saw in it a Ṭawil, whence I vocalized לְךָ (מבחר השירה העברית, p. קפג) without introducing any other changes, because I believe that fa'lun is admissible for fa'ulun (— — for ⏑ ⏑ —); comp. my Studien zu den Dichtungen Jeh. ha-Levis, p. 26, n. 2; comp. also No. 9 of this collection and the note in Diwan, I, 137. Halper ("The Scansion, etc." in JQR., N. S., IV, 169ff.) likewise takes the metre for Ṭawil, but he does not admit a change of metrical feet, preferring to change the text in six places. These changes I consider quite gratuitous. It is inconceivable to me how a connoisseur of language and poetry of Dr. Halper's rank could assume that Halevi said: וְאִם אֵין בָּךְ מְלָכֶיךָ (comp. the vocalization and word-order in Jer. 8,19). מְלָכֶיךָ is amorphous and anomalous, having no analogy in Scripture; the reference to Eccles. 10,17 is without importance, for אֲשֶׁרֶיךָ is sing. despite the ', but even if we follow Ibn Gikatilla in declaring it a plural, then it is just a plural which by exception appears vocalized as a sing.; but I find no evidence at all for a suffixed noun vocalized half as a sing. and half as a plural.

למבחר החתנים

Ll. 2–3. יָחֲזֵם—וְיֶחֱזַם], comp. note ad loc. (Diwan, II, notes, p. 13); according to the correction introduced here (following the reading of Saphir quoted by Harkavy, III, 186) the sense is as follows: "The friend, from whom they (the friends gathered at the wedding feast) are far away, wishes to see them with his eyes, but his heart sees them as if they were standing before him."

32

בת שחר

L. 2. The reading given seems to me better than that of Davidson: וּלְקוֹל שִׁירָה נָעוֹרָה.

L. 8. מְרַקְחִים] Davidson: מרחקים.

L. 13. מְדַדָּיָה] Davidson: מְדוֹדָיָה—הַיּוֹם] Davidson: כיום (MS. ביום).

L. 15. יִשָּׁלֵם] So Davidson, better than ישלים of my archetype.

L. 18. עֲפָרֶת נָוֶה] better than Davidson: עִפְרה נוה.

Ll. 19–22. I follow Davidson's better readings, down to אֹתָ, which is wanting in his archetype and for which he substitutes אָנָא. The sense is given in my notes to the Diwan, II, 34; the linguistic difficulties, which called forth my remark: וכונת הבית פשוטה בכללה ולא בפרטיה, are thus removed.

L. 25. בָּרָה] Davidson: יוֹנָה.

L. 26. שׂחַר פָּנֶיהָ שְׂחַר] This is Davidson's reading; the sense is: "he who sees (literally: searches) her face sees the splendour of the stars". This reading is more interesting than that of the Diwan: שַׂחַר פָּנֶיהָ שְׂחַר, which is adopted in the translation.

L. 27. אֶל] So also Davidson; Ex. 25,37: עַל.

שמח בחור

L. 18. חֹם] The manuscripts have: חם ובין; perhaps we should read בֵּין מְחֵי חֹם.

35

עדי עש יעופף

L. 1. יִרְדְּפוּנִי]. The vocalization יְרַדְּפוּנִי suggested by Halper (JQR., l. c., p. 164 and 206) would be admissible, but since the given vocalization is corroborated in the Bible (Ps. 7,6) there is no ground for the assumption that the poet employed poetic license metri causa.

38

לפרוד

L. 1. וְדַלּוֹתִי] Plene (following Ps. 142,7), because we usually find it so in these forms; hence also נְקַלּוֹתִי (despite 2 Sam. 6,22), in order to emphasize the inner rhyme visually. S. Joseph (l. c., p. 300) would like to write נְקַלֹּתִי, but then וְדַלֹּתִי (Ps. 116,6) would also have to be preferred, as in Kämpf, Nichtandal. Poesie, II, 226.—לְפָרוּד] In Edelmann, נגזי אקספרד p. 25, the reading כפרוד is an error due to haste (for the manuscript underlying it, MS. Oxford 1970, exhibits our reading), which S. Joseph would like to retain. The fortunately preserved Arabic text (ממא הנרת), is against it.

L. 6. יְשׁוּבֵנִי] I accept this correction of Joseph.

בך הגביר יצחק

L. 8. מְחַפֶּנֶקֶת and מְחַעֶנֶגֶת] refer as well to אֶרֶץ (l. 1) as to בַּת (l. 7), and there is no cause for reading in l. 7 בַּלְבוּשׁ instead of בְּלָבוּשׁ (as suggested by Joseph l. c., p. 189).

L. 10. סְבִיבֶיהָ כְּסוּת] So three manuscripts, among them the one used by Edelmann; it is therefore again an error of haste when in נגזי אקספרד, p. 41, he prints סביבה. S. Joseph corrected the text—before the reading of the manuscripts was known—into סְבִיבָה הַכְּסוּת, which is possible but cannot be maintained against the evidence of three manuscripts. The explanation which he offers is very far from sound, as in general he tries to read into the poem thoughts which are not contained in it (comp. for instance, his forced construction of ll. 23-30). I cannot deal with this matter here at greater length.

L. 26. זוֹרֶקֶת] has reference to עָב in the preceding line (femin. 1 Kings, 18,44.)

L. 48. מַעְתֶּקֶת] comp. my note ad loc., but it is possible that the poet wants to have it understood in the sense of עָתָק (comp. Job, 21,7 and elsewhere, further Ibn Ganaḥ s. v.): she intones a doubly powerful song. Joseph (and also Bacher) would like to read מַמְתֶּקֶת, but since this word occurs above, l. 28, in a rhyme, he tries to force upon it there a sense (לשון עצה כלומר מתיעצת) which it has nowhere else, not even in the passage Ps. 55, 15 quoted by him as proof.

L. 56. מַחֲנֶה] Joseph wants to read מַחֲנָה, which is possible. To emend וּלְךָ into וּבְךָ I consider unnecessary; comp. הַזָּעָק-לִי 2 Sam. 20,4.

L. 58. וּלְחַעֲלָמָה] without Mappik, as found in some editions of Job 28,11; other editions exhibit there וְחַעֲלָמָה, but this reading would lead to misinterpretations, such as may be seen in Joseph, p. 196, who construes Edelmann's slips of the pen (ולתעלמיה מורקת: p. 41, גנזי אקספרד) as readings and endeavours to defend them.

40

שמואל הנגיד

L. 1. מְנֻזָּרִים] with Dagesh in the נ, as Nah. 3,17.

L. 14. בִּין] Joseph, p. 199, suggests בבין metri causa, after having denied in a note on the preceding page that the poem has any metre.

L. 22. נִנְהָם] Participle Niph'al; Joseph, p. 199, suggests נוהים (Ḳal) despite the fact that the only passage where the verb נהה occurs in the sense intended here (1 Sam. 7,2) exhibits the Niph'al.

L. 29 אֲנִי] Four syllables are found in hemistichs elsewhere (even 1a); Joseph's suggestion to read אֲנִי is not acceptable.

L. 32 וְחַיֵּי] Joseph (p. 200) wants to emend it to ומחיה (probably so for ומחיי of the edition), by analogy with מרפא, but a noun corresponds with a noun, not a participle.

41

לנד משה

L. 55. חֲרָשִׁים] Following a correction by Ch. N. Bialik in the second edition of the מבחר השירה העברית, which is to appear soon; the difficulties of the verse are now removed.

L. 65. וְנָקַל] Participle, like the following וְנִדְמָה; וְנָקַל, as suggested by Joseph, would be a Perfect and out of place here.

ידע מכאבינו

L. 1. מַכְאֹבֵינוּ] So all the texts in keeping with Ex. 3,7; the rhyme requires מַכְאֹבֹתֵינוּ, in which case the Pathaḥ furt. of יְדַע would not be counted metrically.

68

כלה לך כלתה

L. 2 חֻלְתָה] The ל without Dagesh, metri causa, as שְׁלְחָה Ez. 17,7; 31,4 et al.

L. 10. וְנַפְשָׁה] with short syllable before the metre Mustaf-'ilun, in spite of Halper's conclusions (JQR., l. c., p. 169 and 183).

72

כי בא אור

L. 5. In the literal quotation of Bible verses the metre is neglected, as I have often pointed out. In this poem there is another instance in l. 9. In view of this the correction עֲדֵי for עַד (Prov. 6,9) in l. 16 may be superfluous.

77

שלום לך יום השביעי

L. 6. שַׁעֲשׁוּעִי] This reading is better than מַרְגּוֹעִי, because it does not force us to read a Shewa quiescens as Shewa mobile.

L. 27. שִׁירֵי יְדִידוֹת] So in the Karaite Prayer Book (ed. Wien 1854, vol. IV, p. צב); שִׁיר אֵל יְדִידוֹת cannot be explained; שִׁיר יְדִידוֹת (Halberstam in Luzzatto, טל אורות, p. 2, n. 4) is against the metre; שִׁיר הַיְדִידוֹת, as found in some editions (so שבחי אלהים, Oran 1885 p. נ), can be looked upon only as an awkward correction.
